Quiz: Checklists

Due	Points	Questions	Time limit
No due date	5	5	None

Attempt history

	Attempt	Time	Score
LATEST	Attempt 1	2 minutes	3 out of 5

Submitted 31 Oct at 19:21

Question 1	1 / 1 pts

Do checklists and rubrics serve the same purpose?

Correct!

No, checklists are created to ensure that the brief has been followed, while rubrics ensure that all sections have been completed thoroughly.

○ Yes, they are identical. One simply has fewer words than the other.

○ No, checklists are used for primary and high school, while rubrics are used for tertiary.

○ Yes, they serve the same purpose - one just has additional details for the grader.

A good checklist is generic; it can be used in a number of contexts.

Correct answer

○ No, checklists need to be reviewed for specificity.

○ Yes, a checklist is a checklist!

○ Yes, all assignments have a similar format, so we can recycle checklists.

You Answered

Yes, all checklists can just be slightly amended to suit the brief.

What is wrong with this checklist?

Ultimate Checklist Version 1
Things To Do	Good / Bad	Initial/Date
Do This	Good ☐ Bad ☐
Do That	Good ☐ Bad ☐
Check This	Good ☐ Bad ☐
Check That	Good ☐ Bad ☐
Go Here	Good ☐ Bad ☐
Go There	Good ☐ Bad ☐

○ Nothing, it is a very useful tool for checking one's work.

○ It could have more details added.

○ Absolutely nothing, I would use this for any assignment.

Correct!

It is vague and non-specific.

Question 4

This question could be phrased better on a checklist:

Is my grammar correct?

○ Have I followed all the grammar rules?

○ Have I double-checked my writing?

○ Have I checked for punctuation, spelling and grammar errors?

Correct!

Have I carefully proofread my writing, focusing on various grammatical rules?

Question 5   0 / 1 pts

One of the main differences between a checklist and a rubric is:

○ There is no difference

You Answered

A checklist is a list of suggestions, while a rubric has mandatory criteria

○ A rubric is only useful when being graded

Correct answer

○ A checklist is straight and to the point